Course Description

This course addresses the key issues that affect the economy and society in emerging markets: globalization, slowing growth, Covid-19, demography, women, urbanization, religion, commodities, water, renewable energies, climate change, currencies, enterprises, and geopolitical power politics. The course considers how the emergence of BRICS, the five major emerging national economies of Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa, and the following wave of emerging countries appearing in the South, from Nigeria to Indonesia through Ethiopia and Vietnam, has created a strategic challenge for the OECD countries. The emerging markets are analyzed as both growing markets and competitors, with which new partnerships must be invented.
