Course Description

This course offers a wide-ranging survey of European history from the late 18th century to the present. It provides a basic grounding in - and a self-contained survey of - Modern European History, and it demonstrates how European society has evolved as a result of the interplay of major economic, social, political, and cultural developments of the period c.1780 to the present. A course with such a wide chronological and geographical span has to be rigorously selective, and in consequence the lecturers confine their attentions to those general developments that had a far-reaching influence on a major part of the European population.
