Course Description

The course introduces financial markets and financial institutions. The course instructs on the roles of regulation and deregulation in financial markets and the causes of financial crises. Then, the course discusses commercial banks and how financial institutions utilize financial instruments from financial markets to manage their risks. The course employs tools and concepts as well as classroom lectures and discussions, and "live case studies" to offer a hands-on learning experience.

The course is geared toward the applications of principles from finance and economics that explore the connection between financial markets, financial institutions, and the economy.

The purpose of this course is to guide students in mastering economic tools and critical thinking skills as applied to financial markets and institutions. After completion of the course, students will be familiar with and able to explain key elements of financial markets and how they function, including the role of information in financial markets, and the causes and consequences of financial crises.
