COURSE DETAIL

TRANSNATIONALISM IN GLOBAL CLIMATE POLITICS
Country Denmark
Host Institution University of Copenhagen
Program(s) University of Copenhagen
UCEAP Course Level Upper Division
UCEAP Subject Area(s) Political Science International Studies
UCEAP Course Number 104
UCEAP Course Suffix
UCEAP Official Title TRANSNATIONALISM IN GLOBAL CLIMATE POLITICS
UCEAP Transcript Title GLOBAL CLIMATE POL
UCEAP Quarter Units 6.00
UCEAP Semester Units 4.00

Course Description

This course examines transnational global climate change developments through the lens of broader debates about transnationalism in world politics. It explores how and under what conditions sub-national and non-state actors such as cities, corporations, NGOs, and Indigenous peoples have become central to global efforts to address climate change. The course also considers the diverse forms of transnational governance led by these actors and the relationship of these initiatives to multilateral treaties and other state-based forms of climate change regulation. It reviews efforts to assess whether transnationalism contributes to a more effective global response to climate change and reflects on the normative issues raised as transnational actors and forms of governance become more deeply embedded in global climate politics.

Language(s) of Instruction
English

Host Institution Course Number
ASTK18395U

Host Institution Course Title
TRANSNATIONALISM IN GLOBAL CLIMATE POLITICS

Host Institution Course Details
https://kurser.ku.dk/course/astk18395u/2022-2023

Host Institution Campus

Host Institution Faculty
Social Sciences

Host Institution Degree
Bachelor

Host Institution Department
Political Science

Course Last Reviewed
2022-2023

Print