Course Description

This course instructs on how corporate finance is being practiced in Japanese corporations. The history and status of corporate finance in Japan will be presented, focusing on the uniqueness of Japanese management from a financial management perspective.

Knowledge of corporate finance is not required; the basics of financial management will be explained in each session. Each session consists of two parts.

The first part of the session addresses the history and status of corporate finance in Japan, such as the history of Japanese stock market, banking systems, how Japanese people behave with regards to asset management, etc.

The second part of the session provides a lecture on the basics of financial management, including various finance theories, e.g. Free Cash Flow, Time value of money, Discounted Cash Flow, Net Present Value, WACC, etc. Students will be given opportunities to discuss various topics about contemporary finance such as the latest trend of the capital market, M&A etc. For the students who have already studied corporate finance prior to their arrival in Japan, this second part may be a repetition of what they have learned. However, it would aid in the understanding of what is discussed in the first part of the session.
