Course Description

(1) Take conducting as a platform to immerse the body into music learning, which is particularly important for students who have never learned instrumental music!

(2) Cultivate the ability of multi-part cooperation in music.

(3) Train the stage sense of music performance, and establish their own method of learning music in the future.

This course is a combination of conducting and chorus teaching content, divided into online and offline two parts. Part of the teaching time requires students to study online at home. Offline classroom teaching is mainly based on demonstration teaching techniques, supplemented by practical training. In addition, some exercises with teaching and practical value need to be completed by students after class.
