Course Description

This course aims to introduce students to the reading of both primary and secondary historical materials in Medieval Japanese history, thus deepening their knowledge of historical issues in this period. Topics of the classes and the related readings are different every year.

The course involves careful reading of various sources in English and Japanese (both primary and secondary sources, depending on the requests and ability of the participants), and discussions of their content in historical context. For each session students are expected to read the materials in advance and summarize the content of the text(s) in the form of a detailed handout (approx. 2-3 pages). All participants will be required to ask two questions or comment on the presentation of others.
