Course Description

This course is for foreign students with no previous knowledge of Chinese. It covers four main areas: speaking, listening, reading and writing which require pinyin-word processing and actual writing of Chinese characters. The pinyin-word processing is emphasized for this course to enable students to break the restrictions of the number of characters they can actually write and allow them to communicate in Chinese soon. The course is at first conducted in English and gradually adds Chinese as students' vocabulary increases. Students master the Pinyin system and frequently used sentence structures and expressions.
