Course Description
In 1460 Ireland was a patchwork of lordships including an English Pale; by 1800 the country was poised to enter a United Kingdom with England and Scotland. In 1460, all Irish people shared the common religion of Western Europe; by 1800 three groups – Catholics, Protestants, and Dissenters dominated. In 1460, only a tiny number did not speak Irish; by 1800 English was spoken by well over half the population. During these 340 years Ireland experienced massive transfers of land-holding, invasions, bitter civil war, and a huge expansion of population. This course explains the complex blend of identities, allegiances, and social changes that shaped the past and continue to shape the Irish present.
