Course Description

This course provides an introduction to the industrial, cultural, and theoretical histories of Chinese/Chinese language/Sinophone cinemas. Since the 1980s, filmmakers such as Ann Hui, Tsai Ming-liang, Ang Lee, Jia Zhangke, and Wong Kar-wai have made Chinese-language films known to the audiences in Europe and North America. This course discusses the historical contexts in which these filmmakers emerged. Also, it introduces lesser-known filmmakers and film practices and suggests new understandings of what Chinese/Chinese language/Sinophone cinemas are.
