Course Description
Based on recent leading-edge research, this course gives students the concepts, insights, and tools necessary to successfully start up, manage, and scale-up innovative, sustainable businesses which are designed for social good. While the insights from this course on social innovation and entrepreneurship are more fundamental, the focus is on emerging economies where social and environmental problems are most extreme including South Asia, Africa, and South America. Interactive case studies form an integral part of the course; examining social innovations and their social impact in sectors such as solar energy, microfinance, gender and youth equality, mobile banking, e-education, and more.
