Course Description

This course traces the history of gothic, ghost stories, and science fiction literature through the 19th century, giving students the chance to consider the development of a range of dark and frightening imaginaries in this period. Exploring the political, psychological, and creative functions of these dark imaginings in writings by Charles Dickens, Hannah Crafts, George Eliot, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Jean Toomer and others, students consider the role and function of monsters, ghosts, werewolves, and the uncanny in 10th-century culture (and in culture at large).
