Course Description
This course focuses on Chinese people's thinking about the eternal contradictions between the limited resources and human's unlimited desires and its solution since Xia, Shang, and Zhou, including economic thought of pre-Qin Confucius, Mencius, Xunzi, Mozi, Laozi, Zhuangzi, Shangyang, Han Feizi and the business school, economic thought of the eastern han dynasty and the western han dynasty, economic thought of Wei, Jin and the Southern and Northern dynasty, economic thought of Sui and Tang dynasties, economic thought of Song, Yuan, Ming and Qing dynasties and so on. There are three purposes. The first is to understand the change of national economic thought, the second is to deepen understanding of the real economic problems, and the third is to understand the same nature of the development of human society by comparison with the Western economic thought. Text: History of Ancient Chinese Economic Thought, Peking University Press, compiled by Shi Shiqi and Zheng Xueyi. Assessment: class participation, an extensive research paper, and a final exam.
