Course Description

This course consists of a survey and understanding of contemporary theories of justice. It engages with key texts as well as contemporary cases that reveal the key concepts and stakes of theorizing and practicing justice. Perspectives of Utilitarianism, Political Liberalism, Libertarianism, Communitarianism, Liberal Egalitarianism, Multiculturalism, Republicanism, and Feminism are covered. Students learn diverse approaches to justice and their theoretical foundations; learn how to analyze, understand, and critique contemporary political life through the lens of theories of justice and learn how to analytically and critically write argumentative essays on the topic of justice.
