Course Description

This course continues students' education in Arabic and builds on previous coursework, with a prerequisite of two semesters of Arabic language study. The course develops skills to summarize listening passages and solve objective and subjective questions both stated and implied; discuss a topic and answer questions; differentiate synonyms and antonyms and outline the main ideas and meaning of some new vocabulary from the context; apply learned grammar such as prepositions, object, negation, and conjunctions and produce nominal and verbal sentences; and produce a daily journal and a small essay using the vocabulary learned. The course emphasizes a communication-based method of instruction. Students are expected to be active learners, coming to class prepared to activate vocabulary and grammar through group activities. Instead of lecturing, instructors primarily facilitate these communication-based activities and guide student learning.
