COURSE DETAIL

GLOBAL OCEAN POLITICS
Country Denmark
Host Institution University of Copenhagen
Program(s) University of Copenhagen
UCEAP Course Level Upper Division
UCEAP Subject Area(s) Political Science International Studies
UCEAP Course Number 152
UCEAP Course Suffix
UCEAP Official Title GLOBAL OCEAN POLITICS
UCEAP Transcript Title GLOBAL OCEAN POLIT
UCEAP Quarter Units 6.00
UCEAP Semester Units 4.00

Course Description

This course explores the key problems that the oceans are contemporarily facing and how global governors, law enforcement agencies, and other actors intend to address them. The course is organized in three blocks. In the first part, it revisits the contemporary foundations of ocean governance, including international organizations and the law of the sea. It then revisits the key contemporary ocean discourses. In part two, the course investigates major issues on the ocean agenda, such as shipping, fishing, piracy, smuggling, or deep seabed mining and how international actors address them. Following an independent writing period, the course concludes with a workshop where case studies are presented. The course is assessed on the basis of participation and the independent project.

Language(s) of Instruction
English

Host Institution Course Number
ASTK18423U

Host Institution Course Title
GLOBAL OCEAN POLITICS

Host Institution Course Details
https://kurser.ku.dk/course/astk18423u/2024-2025

Host Institution Campus

Host Institution Faculty
Social Sciences

Host Institution Degree
Bachelor

Host Institution Department
Political Science/Social Data Science

Course Last Reviewed

2024-2025

Print