Course Description
This course explores the history of Latin America in the 20th century, focusing on both the common elements and the diversity of experiences that can be found in the different historical processes that have marked the continent. It focuses on the cultural aspects of significant social and political processes during that time and analyzes them from the perspectives of race, class, and gender. This course discusses the emergence of new political actors at the turn of the century, the collapse of the oligarchy, the rise of populism, authoritarianism, and human rights, and the construction of post-dictatorship historical memories in Latin America.
