Course Description

This course provides a broad introduction to the linguistic analysis of Korean. Topics include phonetics, phonology, morphology, syntax, and semantics, as well as a small amount of orthography, history, pragmatics, and sociolinguistics.

This course primarily focuses on Korean, but it will include examples from other languages to show how Korean compares and contrasts.

The recommended prerequisite for this course is two years of college-level Korean. If a student has completed one year of college-level Korean, they must be prepared to put in extra time and effort. Students who have completed less than one year of college-level Korean are not encouraged to enroll in this course, unless they have already had some coursework in general linguistics (e.g., an introduction to linguistics, plus one or two additional courses in core topics such as phonetics, phonology, syntax, or semantics).
