Course Description

The complex daily living and high stress caused by the progress of human civilization and the development of science and technology have greatly increased the interest and demand for music therapy. Because music can transcend external limitations to soothe fatigue and sadness of body, mind and soul, it can also rebuild and renew people's lives. This course crosses disciplines through the effectiveness of music, combined with psychological and medical theories. The course content combines the cultivation of musical literacy and practical application of music perception, injecting beauty and vitality into life through music, thereby gaining spiritual balance and satisfaction and improving moral cultivation.
