Course Description

This course introduces students to different methods of reading literature historically. In order to learn how to place specific textual representations in their wider social and intellectual contexts, students examine a range of literary genres, encompassing both canonical and non-canonical texts from the medieval period to the late 18th century. The texts have been selected to encourage critical engagement with the global dimensions of "English Literature." Students must have passed Literary Studies 1A and 1B (or equivalent if visiting student).
