Course Description

This course covers the problems and challenges faced in practice by administrators of adult education programs. Topics include recruitment and retention of learners, diverse learner needs, funding constraints, program evaluation, and policy and regulatory changes, all of which affect program maintenance and management. Adult education administrators or practitioners are expected to navigate these challenges by leveraging innovative practices, advocating for relevant policy support and resources, and employing effective management and leadership skills.

In this course, students develop a comprehensive overview of the challenges outlined above and how to handle them timely and efficiently. This course prepares students to understand what organizing and administrating education programs in adult education context means, and to identify common challenges adult education administrators face in practice and how to handle them.
