Course Description

Indigenous peoples are present in the economic participation and cultural wealth of their nations. A variety of languages can still be heard and seen, and uprisings, such as those of the Zapatistas in Chiapas, can be observed. This second semester course analyzes the cultural knowledge and original philosophies of each of the most important groups in Mexico: Nahuatl, Zapotec, Mixtec, Purépecha, and Quechua and Aymara of Peru and Bolivia, including a few other Mexican and Latin American philosophers.
