Course Description

This course continues students' education in Arabic and builds on previous coursework, with a prerequisite of one semester of Arabic language study. The course develops skills to differentiate basic structures and short phrases as well as retrieve the root for any Arabic word and ten forms; demonstrate the ability to read short texts and comprehend theme, read aloud with good pronunciation and read correctly with short and long vowels; repeat and write words, phrases from listening material; apply vocabulary, write questions and answers and arrange sentences to write a short story; describe family, relatives, friends, places and favorite topics in short sentences. The course emphasizes a communication-based method of instruction. Students are expected to be active learners, coming to class prepared to activate vocabulary and grammar through group activities. Instead of lecturing, instructors primarily facilitate these communication-based activities and guide student learning.
