Course Description

This course aims to provides a cultural perspective on human development. Specifically, the course emphasizes the usefulness of (cross-)cultural approaches to understanding parenting and psychological functioning, to assess culturally diverse children and families, and to implement culturally sensitive interventions. The course draws from specific examples from the Italian culture, and particularly the Roman one. This means that students are given the opportunity to familiarize themselves with the culture and the characteristics of the city and its peoples. Upon completion of the course, students are expected to be knowledgeable about the role of culture in human development and in socialization processes, as well as to identify the risk and protective factors involved in the adaptation of relocated families.
