Course Description

This course develops English language skills to an advanced level through reading and critical interpretation of English literature. Students read, discuss, and write about selected well-known literary fiction in English literature, ranging from traditional canonical works to contemporary science fiction. The focus of the course is to introduce essential themes as well as elements of literary form and technique, while developing the analytical skills necessary to produce sophisticated interpretations of texts. Critical reading involves reading actively and reflectively, and being able to understand, analyze, interpret, and communicate intelligently about literary works. Through a broad study of various texts, this course supports both language development and growth in critical thinking.
