Course Description

This course is based on the France Culture Novel Prize wherein students vote informally for one of the novels in the selection. Various exercises and discussions refine literary sensibility and critical thinking in order to choose the winning novel. Throughout the semester, students progress through the readings and are invited to complete a personal reading journal. Discussion includes what makes a good novel, literary criticism, the origins of literary prizes, how to lead a literary discussion, reflection and debate, reading and analysis of excerpts, institutions behind the literary canon. The course includes meetings with the authors.
