Course Description

This course is an introduction to the Spanish language. The concentration is on formal aspects of language (i.e., spelling, punctuation, accentuation, composition, reading, and traditional grammar). The course is evaluated by weekly oral and written exercises and class participation is required. Exercises involve speaking with fellow classmates. The course also covers the nature of language: structure, diversity, evolution, social and cultural settings, and literary uses. Additionally, the course involves a study of language and its relation to other areas of human knowledge.
