Course Description

This course gives students an overview of how financial markets and institutions work. The content includes introduction to the financial system, financial claims, financial intermediaries, banking, financial markets, equity market, bond market, investment, hedge fund, and private equity, and sustainability in finance. Students learn how to explain the roles, structure, and mechanism of the financial system, financial institutions, and financial markets. Students also learn how to explain the key concepts such as financial claims, financial intermediation, and financial markets. They gain a good understanding of the relevant theories on financial markets and institutions, and explain phenomena such as adverse selection and moral hazard.
