Course Description

This course offers an introduction to the literature of the "Silver Age" of Spanish culture and the literary production within the European socio-historical and artistic framework. It explores the general processes of creation, reception, and dissemination of literary production during the Silver Age. This course also discusses the main literary genres of this period including authors and their works.

Pre-requisites: It is recommended that exchange students taking the course who are not native or bilingual speakers have at least a C1 level of Spanish.
