Course Description

This course introduces the major social changes occurring in global society and their impact on individual and collective identities. Students examine the role of identity, the value of coexistence with people of different ethnicities, races, ideologies, and religions, as well as the importance of dialogue in times of conflict, ideological polarization, and war. Texts and images within art, literature, philosophy, religion and economics are studied. Emphasis is placed on cultural theories, concepts, and methodologies and to understand society through a cultural lens.
