Course Description

This course develops a familiarity with, and the ability to use the tools and concepts of corporate finance. This is accomplished via a combination of lecture, problem sets, and case discussion. The lectures provide a conceptual background for the subsequent analysis of an actual financial decision.

Topics include Cost of capital and capital budgeting; Capital structure with payout policy; IPO's and LBO's; M&A and corporate control; Option application in corporate finance; Risk management.

Students should have a background in basic corporate finance concepts as well as an understanding of the conceptual framework for the capital market. Throughout this course, some analytic tools are used that may rely on students' mathematical understanding.
