Course Description

This course offers an in-depth exploration of the major debates, key thinkers, and intellectual trajectories in feminist thought. Through close engagement with both classic and contemporary texts, we examine feminist critiques of liberalism, capitalism, and the state, as well as theories of gender, sexuality, race, and embodiment.

The course also introduces alternative theoretical frameworks, including care ethics, intersectionality, and decolonial/postcolonial feminisms. Throughout the semester, we critically examine the conceptual foundations of feminist theory while considering how these frameworks can be applied to contemporary politics and social practice.
