Course Description

The program offers a historical overview of the various stages the political system has undergone. The purpose of this overview is to identify the main points of continuity and rupture that have shaped national political life around its institutions, while simultaneously establishing comparative empirical and conceptual links that place this system within common regional trends, as well as highlighting its contrasts. The program will examine the main institutions, actors, and political processes that characterize the system, employing both a comparative perspective to better appreciate its distinctive features and a historical perspective to facilitate understanding of long-term trends.
