Course Description

This course is intended for students who have achieved level B1. It develops the language and methodological skills required for level B2, enabling students to express an opinion on a current topic and explain its advantages and disadvantages in a clear and detailed manner. These expression skills are developed using primary source materials (newspaper articles, literary texts, audio or video recordings, films, images, comic strips, etc.) related to a social issue. These documents are used in oral exchanges to express reasons for or against a given opinion in the form of a debate or discussion. This personal point of view is then defended in writing in a structured, clear, and coherent argumentative text such as an essay, an official letter, a discussion forum, or an article.
