Course Description

Phenomenology is a philosophical tradition that began in the 20th century with thinkers like Edmund Husserl, Martin Heidegger, Jean-Paul Sartre, Simone de Beauvoir, and Maurice Merleau-Ponty. It is also a method focused on describing and analyzing conscious experience. In this course, students examine claims about the methodology of phenomenology and explore topics that have been central to phenomenology, which may include perception, time-consciousness, the lived body, moods and intersubjectivity.
