Course Description

This course covers Noh, a traditional Japanese performing art. Noh has been performed for nearly 650 years, from the 14th century during the Muromachi period to the present day. Based on literary works from the 10th and 11th centuries, the plays were created in the 14th century, and its language is more difficult than modern Japanese. However, Noh has continued until today because it has always possessed an appeal that captivates people, and its content is not outdated, depicting universal human emotions and beauty. Furthermore, its expressive techniques are highly sophisticated, the result of many years of refinement.
