Course Description

In this class on the B2/C1 level according to CEFR, students learn to understand complex texts on subject matters, and to sort statements and findings into new categories. They work to identify the position and opinion of an author, and to summarize and weigh information from different sources. Students practice to express themselves clearly and confidently in written and spoken form on relevant topics, and to contribute to university discussions. This course has a specific focus, such as academic communication, or working and producing academic texts.
