Course Description

This course introduces basic concepts and fundamental methods of corporate financial accounting and reporting, as well as their applications in practice. It focuses on three main types of financial statements, including the balance sheet, the income statement, and the cash flow statement. The course discusses the preparation of the financial statements, information conveyed, and implications of items presented in these financial statements. Students perform economics-based analysis and application of accounting information from the viewpoint of the users of accounting information (especially senior managers) rather than the preparer (the accountant).
