Course Description

The course achieves language proficiency matching the level of upper intermediate through a combination of lectures, conversation classes, language laboratory sessions, and presentations. Issues in Chinese culture, history, and civilization, as well as contemporary and modern society, are topics of discussion in the process of learning and practicing the use of the language. By the end of the course, participants are expected to be able to pass HSK level 5 or higher, meeting the language requirement for postgraduate students at a tertiary institution in China or elsewhere for honors or higher levels of study in Chinese-related subjects. DP requirements: Students must attend classes, lab sessions and tutorials regularly, submit the prescribed number of assignments and write any class test that may be scheduled. Submission dates must be adhered to. Assessment: Coursework (assignments and tests) counts for 40% of the final mark; two-hour written examination counts for 40%; oral and aural examination counts for 20%. Course entry requirements: SLL3121F. Participants should be able to write paragraphs of approximately 1000 characters and speak fairly clearly on a variety of topics with very limited time for preparation.
