Course Description

At the end of the course, the student has an active and passive basic knowledge of the Spanish language. In particular, the student is able to: read, take notes, follow a discussion in Spanish; deal with specialist economic and political language in Spanish-speaking cultures. The linguistic content information is selected according to the CEFR levels for Spanish. The four skills are developed (reading comprehension, writing, speaking, and listening). In this first part of the course, the focus is on the linguistic aspect, which gives the possibility to deepen the required cultural, historical and social issues in the second part. At the end of this course, students reach B1 level.
